Moran murder trial scheduled July 21

By RICH ADAMS
The trials of Edgar E. (Pete) Moran, charged with murdering Coast Electric Employee Curtis (Chopper) Hollman, and former Hancock County Youth Court official Charles E. Carter Jr., charged with embezzlement, will be heard during the July term of Hancock County Circuit Court which begins Monday at 9 a.m.

Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos of Gulfport will preside over the trials. Circuit Court Clerk Henry Otis reports. Vlahos has reportedly established a $100 fine for any prospective juror failing to show in the courtroom for a 'special venire,' or pre-selection of the jury, requested in April by Moran's attorney Boyce Holleman.

Moran's trial is scheduled for July 21. He was arrested August 14, 1979 after allegedly shooting Hollman in the head during a quarrel.

Hollman's body was found on the floor of the Coast Electric truck from which he was working near Cuevetown Road in Hancock County off Hwy. 43. He was pronounced dead on the scene by Coroner Carl Banderet.

Then Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan

J. Ladner and Chief Deputy Ronald A. Peterson apprehended Moran and a pistol at the suspect's home on Cuevetown Road.

Holleman requested continuations in the January and April court terms.

Carter, charged with allegedly embezzling $3,859 from the Youth Court restitution fund, will also be represented by Holleman when he goes to trial Wednesday, July 16.

Carter is charged with allegedly taking the money from the restitution fund between July 1978 and December

County schools ok bid on handicapped center

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Hancock County School Board accepted a bid Saturday morning for a combined classroom facility and handicapped center to be constructed next to Hancock North Central Elementary School.

McClendon Building Service of Gulfport submitted the low bid of $248,200 among two other Gulfport companies vying for the contract.

Arvah McClendon, company president, said, "We should be able to begin construction immediately."

The 180-day contract calls for completion of the facility by the end of February.

However, Superintendent of Education Billy D. Silis asked if the contractor could complete the building by January to help the district in meeting accreditation requirements.

McClendon said, "The 180 days is about as tight as we can get it."

Silis reported, "We need to add some special education classes or we're going to loose about $200,000."

McClendon asked, "When is your deadline?"

Silis replied, "After the Christmas holidays."

McClendon suggested, "Let me talk with my subcontractors about equipment. I'll make every effort to turn this building over to you by the Christmas holidays."

Silis informed school board members, "You have two mills set up for this facility."

"The architect's charges and classroom equipment will have to be added to the construction cost," the superintendent said.

Other bidders for the HNC project were Tilley Construction Co. at $265,929 based on a 180-day schedule, and Gregory Construction Co. at $281,281 on a 250-day schedule.

Regarding school board meetings, the board authorized seeking a State

Kiln Water District extension approved

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Board of the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District has received Farmer's Home Administration approval to extend the system to the Rocky Hill-Firetower Road area.

Michael Haas of Bay St. Louis, the water district's attorney, reported Friday, "The association has secured FmHA approval to begin Phase Two of its project and will now seek supervisor authorization to proceed."

The District's engineers, Garner Russell and Associates, Inc. of Gulfport, estimate the expansion phase will cost some $140,000, Haas reported.

"The project financing consists of a $50,000 government grant and a $90,000 loan from the FHA," Haas explained.

"The board will propose to the County Board of Supervisors and area residents that it be allowed to offer water service to an approximate 5.5-mile section north of the Kiln area to residents of the Rocky Hill—Fire Tower Road area," the attorney stated.

"Residents who are interested should contact Robert Bilbo, Gene Breazeale, C.J. Mauffray, Glen Stockstill or Cleveland Wyatt," Haas said.

"In order to sign the necessary petition, easement and water users agreement, contact Secretary-Treasurer Billy D. Silis, Manager Vernon (Dutch) Haas or myself," Haas explained.

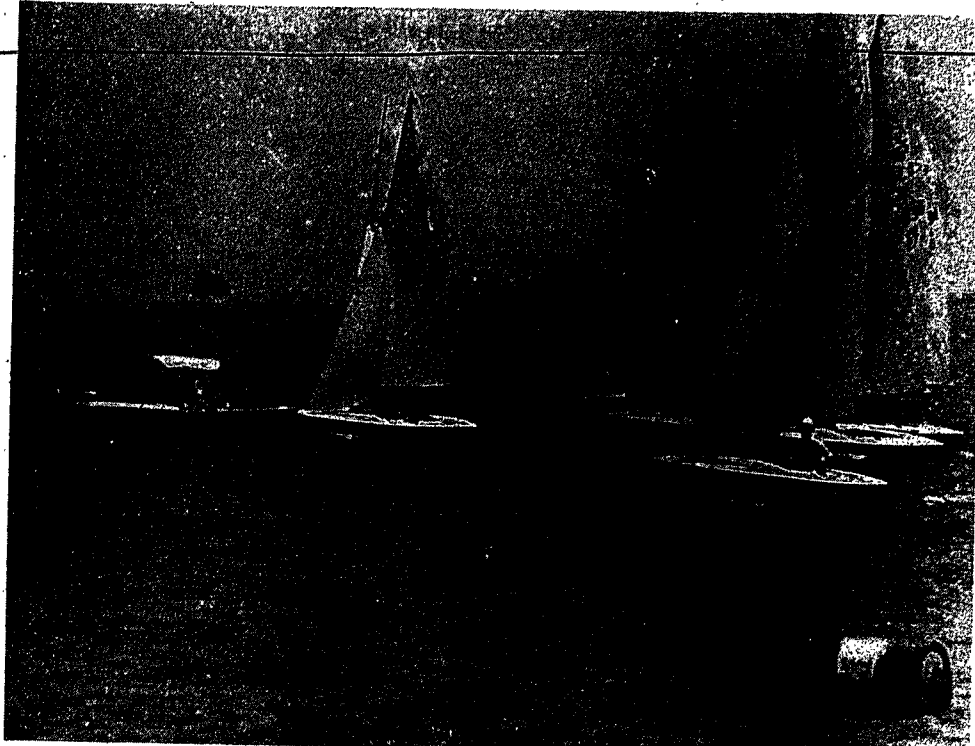

"Both husband and wife are requested to sign the paperwork," he added.

"The board will also permit residents in the Kiln area who are near an existing water line to sign for water service by posting a $25 meter fee and signing the required paperwork," Haas said.

"Later, residents will be required to pay a minimum $200 fee in order to be connected to the new system," the attorney added.

Hancock Scout sex charged by sheriff

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
In a continuing investigation by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, a New Orleans Area Council Boy Scout staff member was arrested Wednesday at the Salmen Reservation near the Sellers Community in Hancock County and charged with child molesting.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson Thursday morning said he and Investigators Delbert Seay and Alvin Ladner arrested Dennis Charles Mischler, 28, of 7521 Vanderkloot St., New Orleans, at the Salmen Reservation about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The arrest of the Salmen program director comes four years after several Scout leaders were charged with homosexual activities in New Orleans.

At that time, several Boy Scout troop leaders and others were charged with homosexual acts in the New Orleans area, with the activities reportedly involving distribution of photographic pornography as well as sex activity on a nationwide level.

Scout officials feel that scandal is partially responsible for financial problems currently plaguing the New Orleans Area Council which includes

DENNIS MISCHLER

Hancock County and 11 Louisiana parishes.

A recent article in the New Orleans Times Picayune—States Item reported the area council 'is $200,000 in debt' and is seeking to sell its Camp Salmen facility near Slidell and expand camping activities at the Salmen Reservation in Hancock County.

Peterson said his office is also looking into reports of an earlier Boy Scout sex incident at Camp Salmen in Slidell.

"Mischler is a regular staff member and Boy Scout program director at the Salmen Reservation near Sellers," the sheriff stated.

"We arrested Mischler after a complaint had been filed by the father of a 14-year-old Slidell boy attending a two-week summer camp program at the reservation," Peterson explained.

"The arrest came after receiving the complaint Tuesday evening. That night and the following day, Ladner, Seay and I conducted an investigation which led to the arrest of the program director," Peterson reported.

"The incident allegedly happened between midnight and 1 a.m. Tuesday," Peterson said.

"Our investigation is continuing," Peterson stated.

The sheriff said Mischler was released on $1,000 bond and a preliminary hearing is set for 7 p.m. July 24 before Justice Court Judge Lloyd Anderson.

Salmen Reservation Director Bob Whitaker said Saturday afternoon, "Mischler was immediately put on temporary suspension until the matter is resolved."

When asked if the incident would interrupt any schedules at the camp, Whitaker replied, "No sir, none whatsoever."

Norton Haas Sr. of Bay St. Louis, Area Council executive committee member, said last week, "We normally should have about 25,000 Scouts in the council with 8,000 adult volunteers, but with the sex scandal in New Orleans several years ago that number has dropped to about 17,000."

Frank Lawrence, a council executive, attributes the Scouts' money problems to the bad publicity from 'those troubles in New Orleans.'

This past week Scout officials reported some 200 Boy Scouts were

Waveland urges conservation of city water

Waveland Alderman and City Clerk Barbara Rappold Friday urged residents of that city to voluntarily restrict unessential use of city water, such as garden watering, lawn-sprinkling and car washing.

"We will be faced with a critical situation in the event of a serious fire because of reduced water pressures in the city," Rappold explained.

She said city water pressure is abnormally low due to heavy demands being made on the system by residents during the current heat wave and drought.

Fuselage fire shuts down orbitor test

Fire in the aft fuselage of an orbitor simulator caused an early shut-down Saturday during a scheduled 542-second, three-engine cluster Space Shuttle test firing at NSTL.

The three-engine cluster of the Shuttle's main propulsion system was tested for 105 seconds Saturday at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Saturday's fire is the second in recent months to plague the Shuttle tests.

Bob Bush, Marshall Space Flight Center's resident manager at NSTL, said Saturday afternoon, "This firing, tenth in a series, was to have lasted 542 seconds. It was terminated because of an indication of fire in the aft fuselage of the orbitor simulator.

"Sensors indicated there may have been a hydrogen leak in that area although it was probably small and there is no indication of significant damage to the hardware," Bush reported.

"A detailed analysis must wait crew entry into the area," he added.

"To the point of termination, all engines and other aspects of the propulsion system apparently functioned normally, and scheduled engine throttling had been accomplished as planned," Bush explained.

"About 45 seconds of the firing was at 102 percent of rated thrust; this being the first time for this performance level," Bush stated.

The Area Council is now taking bids on sale of its 112-acre Camp Salmen facility in Slidell to help solve the local organization's money woes.

Haas said recently, "We hope to sell

Camp Salmen for $2 million and hope to get $200,000 interest each year by investing that money.

"Another problem beside a decrease in members was that we didn't have enough land to expand in Slidell," Haas added.

'Anything Goes' cast takes deserved curtain call

Little Theater takes Cole Porter on bon voyage

By EDGAR PEREZ
Anything Goes at the Bay St. Louis Little Theater including the cast, some of whom almost went after being laid low by a virus and the heat Friday.

Co-director Laurie Byrd said Friday night's performance, the second in the current run of the Cole Porter musical 'Anything Goes,' was cancelled after getting the show underway in a rousing fashion Thursday night.

Byrd said the show was to continue last night, and an extra performance has been scheduled Thursday of this week to make up for the cancellation.

Barring further illness or complications from the stifling playhouse on Boardman Avenue, the performances slated for Friday and Saturday will go on as scheduled, Byrd added.

Dan Griffin, the show's male lead, and his wife Pam, featured as the gun moll Bonnie, were both affected by the mysterious malady Friday, as was comic lead Vic Frankiewicz Jr.

"You can't put on a show when three of your best players are out sick," Byrd said of the Friday cancellation.

One small band of erudite Little Theater patrons reported they preferred having Friday's show cancelled rather than seeing the players turn in a loose performance.

Other expressed regret the ailing members may have suffered a touch of seasickness during the opening night production set aboard the mythical cruise ship, The American.

But before the bug struck backstage, Byrd, co-director Mike Cuevas and musical director Skip Wusmack had assembled a tight-knit group of some 27 performers into an applause-making machine which provided a fine evening of entertainment.

The Griffons and Frankiewicz were joined by the show's star, Connie Heltmann, in opening the theater's 1980-1981 season in memorable fashion.

And turning in opening night's surprise performance was Rusty Blackwell who is a clinch for rookie-of-the-year honors if not better.

Blackwell exhibits excellent timing and delivery in his serio-comic portrayal of Sir Evelyn, a role made more challenging for the 17-year-old Pass High player by demand of a British accent.

Another delightful debut Bay Little Theater performance is turned in by Topsy Stieffell who brings charm, grace and a lovely voice to the role.

Villainess of the production is handled comfortably by Sherry Sch-wabacher in the role of the haughty and snobbish Mrs. Harcourt.

And the entire chorus of sailors and passengers are given a shot-in-the-arm by the enthusiasm brought to the role of a seaman by Rod Stieffell.

Tim Bourgeois as purser is another bundle of joie d'vivre on the evening's voyage.

In charge of the dance portion of the song-and-dance endeavor are 'Angels' Mitzi Plessala, Carol Owen, Claudia Murphy and Darlene Collier.

They are joined by Kissy Byrd, Carla Hille and Ms. Griffin in a show-stopper entitled 'Heaven Hop.'

Other classic Cole Porter tunes enjoying a revival on Boardman Avenue are 'You're The Top,' 'It's Delovely,' 'Friendship,' 'I Get A Kick Out Of You,' 'Let's Misbehave,' 'Blow, Gabriel, Blow,' and, of course, 'Anything Goes.'

Others contributing to the overall high quality of the show are Billy Sills, Richard Taylor, George Proulx, and Cathy Griffin.

Other high-steppers are Linda Dorlin, Joe Wusmack, Tracey Stieffell, Les Parker, Matt Stieffell, Red, and Gloria Reinke.

Jean Keen was a one-man-band on her piano-organ all evening.

John, Jim and Ted Holmes produced the lighting and Jerry Funk, Sam Cuevas and Beth Finnegan provided the technical direction.

Supervisors slash Commission budget

By RICH ADAMS
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Thursday reduced its 1980-1981 budget some $7,000 at the request of the County Board of Supervisors, which had approved the proposed budget Monday.

Port Commission Executive Director Wilson Wehre said he received a call Monday afternoon from the supervisors requesting him to decrease the budget.

"The county will not use the $7,000 elsewhere. This is not a case where the county needs the extra money," Wehre told the commission.

Included in the reduction is a cut in Wehre's salary, which would have been increased from $18,240 to more than $20,000.

The supervisors also requested the commission reduce engineering fees for a yet-to-be-named commission engineer from $14,300 to $10,000.

Wehre also said wages for hourly and salaried clerical and maintenance workers were changed by the supervisors.

"Ironically, some people got more than we had proposed while others will receive less with the supervisors' plans," Wehre said.

"I have talked to all my people and they seem satisfied with the changes, including myself," Wehre told the commission.

"If you recall, few items on our budget increased from last year except insurance, utility, and maintenance costs. This is a modest budget," he added.

The commission unanimously approved the budget amendment.

In other business Thursday, the commission declared a moratorium on an increase of the county's commission from sales of equipment and gasoline at Stennis International Airport.

Fixed Base Operator Andy Ewing had earlier requested the commission to offer financial relief by re-writing his lease on the airport, but the commission decided that was impossible without re-advertising for bids on the FBO contract.

Thursday night Wehre said Ewing had requested the Port body consider reducing the percentage of sales commission it receives on fuel and equipment.

"The first year we collected one percent of all sales, and this year we should have taken two percent," Wehre said.

"Ewing indicated these payments are straining him. A lot of pilots are not flying now and he is requesting financial relief. The only way to offer that relief is to reduce the percentage factor," he added.

Commissioner David McDonald, a member of the Airport committee, said just as high gasoline costs curtail automobile use, "it does the same for joyrides in airplanes."

"Fuel and accessories sales suffer as a result," McDonald said.

"Ewing has done an excellent job in operating the airfield, so I recommend we give him this concession," he added.

Also at Thursday's meeting, Wehre reported on tornado damage to the main hangar at Stennis Airport.

An April tornado damaged the roof of the hangar, causing rain to leak in through broken seals.

"Although there is not much visible damage, two companies have recommended we replace the entire roof," Wehre told the commission.

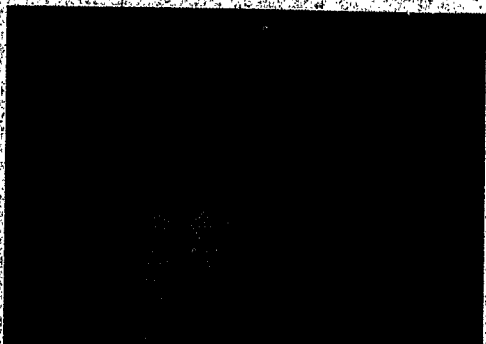

"The insurance company needs estimates to determine how much compensation we will receive," he added.

Wehre said Mitchell Building Company has estimated between $1 and $1.50 per square foot to replace the 14,000-plus square foot roof.

Shambra of New Orleans has estimated, via a telephone conversation, $19,345 to replace the roof.

McDonald said the company could not patch the roof and that removal and replacement of the old roof is necessary.

The commission directed Wehre to obtain firm estimates and return with the estimates.

NSTL manager reports progress on Shuttle

By RICH ADAMS
The manager of the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County Thursday told some 70 state, county, and municipal government officials from Mississippi and Eastern Louisiana about the history, growth, space than did the Appolo crafts," he added.

"This is the most flexible craft ever built, with the main purpose being to allow routine, easy access to space at comparatively low costs," Hlass continued.

Florida," Hlass said.

"We have 100 percent thrust from the engines now, but we are hoping to achieve 109 percent thrust by 1985. We also need to continue life cycle performance, flight support, and improvements on the current engine," he and future of the testing facility.

The briefing by NSTL Manager Jerry Hlass is the first of its kind since 1977.

Hlass said he invited the officials to NSTL "because we feel a deep sense of obligation to report to you how we are spending tax money...and your continued support is necessary in allowing us to carry out our functions effectively."

Hlass explained the past of the NSTL site, showing a slide of the H. Weston Logging Company in 1922, which operated a sawmill on the present site of the facility.

The manager then told the officials and guests that he expects the Space Shuttle, the engines of that craft now being tested at NSTL, to make its maiden flight in March, 1981.

A test firing of the three shuttle engines was scheduled as part of the tour Thursday, but a malfunction in controls forced cancellation of the firing.

"We have been testing the (Space Shuttle's) propellant engines here since 1975, and the engines have matured to a point where we believe the first flight will occur in March of next year," Hlass said.

He explained how two rocket boosters will lift the craft 30 or 40 miles into space, where the boosters will be jettisoned and land in the ocean, to be recovered and re-used.

"Approximately 105 seconds before the Shuttle begins orbit, the extension tank will be jettisoned and fall into the ocean. This is the only part of the Shuttle which is not re-usable," Hlass explained.

"The craft will then begin a low orbit around the earth, approximately 60 miles at the lowest and 150 miles at the highest spot," he added.

The facility manager reported the Shuttle, the size of a DC-9 jet, will be used to place satellites into orbit.

"This is a better way to place satellites in orbit, because the G-forces are less than launching from earth," Hlass explained.

"The cargo space on the shuttle can hold a maximum of 65,000 pounds, or five small satellites. The satellites will not have to be built to survive atmospheric drag experienced by those launched from earth, so it will be cheaper to design and build the satellites," he continued.

"Also, with the Shuttle we may check the condition of the satellites, service them when parts wear out, and retrieve the satellites when we want to," he added.

"In addition, we may load the cargo area with a space laboratory, similar to a space station, in which scientists may conduct tests," Hlass explained.

"This is the first time in history when scientists and medical men, not trained as rugged astronauts, may travel in space. The rugged astronauts will still be needed to pilot the craft, but scientists who are 80-years-old and in good physical condition may travel on the craft," the manager continued.

The Space Shuttle also offers comparative luxury in more living continued.

"The Army Ammunition Plant, currently under construction in the north sector of the facility, will be in operation by 1985. I predict modest growth in the naval operations here, as I do in the other industries," he added.

Some 16 guests then toured the facility in NSTL vans, guided by Tour Director Terry Malone and Public Relations Officer Mack Herring.

At the test stand, Malone said the steel structure is the tallest standing object in the state at 409 feet.

Letters spelling "NSTL" are each nine-feet high, he added.

The tour continued to the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Activity, where workers were preparing a number of data buoys, some as heavy as 100-tons.

"Two NOAA buoys sat in the path of a hurricane some months ago. The hurricane was headed straight toward New Orleans and blew right over the buoys, which provided detailed data," Herring explained.

The tour went by the headquarters of the U.S. Coast Guard Gulf Strike Team, and then went to a unique water treatment plant.

"Water Hyacinth have been proven to clean the water after initial purification," Herring explained.

"Developed by our earth research people, these plants absorb all domestic and laboratory waste. A similar sewerage plant is being placed in Walt Disney World in Orlando, Florida," he explained.

The water hyacinth, once totally exhausted for purification use, is then dried in a solar-powered drying house and ground up, being available as a 20 percent protein product for use as a food supplement or fertilizer, Herring added.

Hlass explained by using a chart that some 750 Hancock County residents are employed at the site, an increase from 17 percent of the workforce in 1977 to 23 percent of the workers in 1980.

"Hancock County has gained the most new residents working at NSTL in the three-year period," Hlass said.

Hlass then predicted what the situation will be at NSTL in 1985.

"I predict the Space Shuttle program will still be going strong, even though all three engines are presently certified and being shipped to Cape Kennedy in

Breland

Mr. E.E. (Ed) Breland, long time educator and native of Hancock County, was laid to rest Monday.

He was born in Anner, Miss., a place not too many of us are familiar with, but we understand it is in the northern part of Hancock.

As superintendent of education from 1947-59, he was the last person to serve for a period of more than four consecutive years in the Hancock County School System.

Mr. Breland was involved with the education of thousands of Hancock citizens as a teacher and administrator and will long be remembered by many.

An avid sports fan, he enjoyed watching many of his grandchildren participate in such sporting activities as baseball, basketball, football and horse shows, after following his children's many years of sports participation.

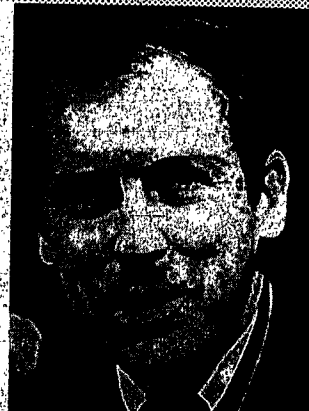

Mr. Breland left his mark in the schools of Leetown, Kiln, Gulfview, Charles B. Murphy, Hancock North Central and a few years in St. Bernard Parish, Louisiana.

He was an old time educator. Not too many of today's teachers will devote 42 years of their lives to the education of children.

An active member of his church and community, a familyman and friend of many, Mr. Breland will be missed but not forgotten by us all.

News
governor's office

Governor William Winter has predicted that a management study authorized recently by the State Budget Commission will give the people of Mississippi more services for their money.

Winter, chairman of the Budget Commission, noted that the study could result in a savings of millions of dollars to state taxpayers. "It is important that we achieve improved delivery of services to the people of our state," Winter said. "Improved efficiency and cost effective programs in state government are what the voters of this state expect and what this administration is determined to deliver."

Winter attended several meetings of state commissions last week, saying he intends to participate fully in the day-to-day operation of state government. Winter attended meetings of the forestry commission, and the Building Commission in addition to attending several Budget Commission meetings.

"I want to get a first hand view of how the agencies of state government are operating and conducting the business of our state's taxpayers," Winter said. "I want to see to it personally that these agencies are properly managing the affairs of our citizens."

Winter also announced the appointment of Eupora attorney Hugh Gibson to the Mississippi State Employment Security Commission. In making the appointment, Winter said he wants to see that the agency is operated free from political interference.

"I want to see that this and all other state agencies are operated in response to the needs of the people," Winter said. "As I promised in my campaign for governor, I intend to see that our taxpayers receive a dollar's worth of services for every tax dollar."

Winter, who has been unhappy with the Commission's performance, is seeking to upgrade the operation of the Employment Security Commission.

Mrs. Virginia Gex, President
Board of Trustees
Bay St. Louis
Municipal Separate School District

Dear Mrs. Gex:

This letter will advise you of the formation of the Bay-Waveland Committee for Better Education. Our organization is interested in affording the children of this community the best public education possible.

We know that the Board of Trustees is dedicated to this same goal, an objective the board cannot accomplish without the support of the citizens of this school district.

We offer our support of your actions which contribute to the achievement of our mutual objectives and hope the Board of Trustees will reciprocate by supporting and implementing our suggestions for the improvements of our school system.

In the immediate future we plan to pursue the following objectives:

- Accreditation of all schools in our system by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools
 - Adoption of a Budget Planning Procedure which will involve citizens in all stages of the budget from planning to adoption.
 - Implementation of the Education Needs Assessment Committee as approved by the Board in August of 1979.
- We look forward to working with you for the betterment of our community in the very important area of education. We feel that the sincere pursuit and accomplishment of this goal will not only provide our children with a sound education but a favorable self-concept which is so vitally important to the total child and future adult.

Pearlington volunteer fire chief asks community support

June 30, 1980

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

I am writing you concerning a community problem in Pearlington. Five years ago a handful of people got together and formed a volunteer fire department.

Since others had failed before using the name Pearlington Fire Department, we decided to call it the West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department.

For the past five years we have struggled to stay together.

Well, we've made it. We have a fire truck that has been in service for three years and two more in the process of being put on the line. We have saved a few homes in our community, but there are still the few that we have lost because of the department not being up to par.

We've set goals for the fire department to alleviate this situation, which are to erect a fire station on the empty lot on the 'side of the Community Center, and to have three trucks to roll to any emergency in our community. But, we need all the people in our community to pull together to reach these goals. One stumbling block is the attitude that a fire station will not put out fires.

They are right, but it makes no sense to work all weekend maintaining a fire truck, (the work being performed by the same few persons all of the time) and put the truck back into the elements.

The attitude of the community seems to be the biggest obstacle in the smooth management and operation of our fire department.

It has been conveyed to me that a few persons in the community have the attitude that the fire department cannot do anything for them; all they can do is save half my house and ruin my insurance claim' or, 'a waste of money to me because my house has never caught fire' or, 'I'll never need any help from the fire department.'

Take a moment to look around your office or home. You see things you've worked very hard for, some of which can be replaced and some which cannot. So much for material possessions.

Now think of your family and co-workers. One of them could get trapped in a house full of flame, or trapped in a car and need help. Wouldn't it be nice to know that help was on the way?

Things of this nature happen and there are as many justifications for a fire department as there are lives in a community. Whether it's you, your family, a friend, or a neighbor.

It is defeating for the few volunteers of our fire department to go to a fire and not be able to extinguish it 100 percent because we do not have access to the proper equipment.

Knowing that if the community would pull together, we could have the finest department in the country can become frustrating for the people working toward this goal.

Many civic minded members of our community have donated their time and dollars to this effort. That many people can't be wrong.

The West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department is now in the community's hands.

I hope everyone will take a little more interest and time to help us make the needed improvements.

We are not asking for all of the community's time. Interested people could help for just four to eight hours a month.

We need persons to help run our benefits, do mechanical and physical work, and much more.

Interested persons can contact the undersigned at 533-7158.

Any help would be appreciated and it is worth it to you.
Thank you for your time.

Hancock Red Cross official

The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

I would like to call attention to the splendid job the Hancock County Chapter of the American National Red Cross did to help those in the Garden Isles area after the tornado in May.

The final report on the monies spent amounts to $3,062 which was spent for food, temporary lodging, debris clean-up, and in some cases, medical supplies.

Those who worked closely with the Red Cross during this time of assistance have asked that a heartfelt "thank you" be added to all the merchants and volunteers who were ready where and when needed.

Again the Red Cross has demonstrated that it is, indeed, "YOUR GOOD NEIGHBOR."

If you are not already a member of this wonderful organization, you can become one simply by sending $1 to the executive secretary, Mrs. Thelma Kergoseln, Box 149, Bay St. Louis, 39520.

You are sure to be pleased to be part of an organization that is constantly on the alert to help your fellow man.

Sincerely yours,

Randy:

Being a part of the Miss USA Pageant that was rated as the No. 1 TV program in the nation is no small feat.

Your personal effort has helped improve the image of Mississippi in the minds of millions of Americans.

In fact, what you did surpassed the efforts of a five year program of the State Chamber of Commerce in its attempt to tell the nation the truth about life in Mississippi.

It is estimated that over 18 million households were watching the program and your part in the exceptional job done to cover the pageant was a key in the success of the show.

For the many, many Mississippians who are disgusted with the inaccurate image that others have of us, let me say "thanks."

You may be interested in knowing that 4,500 news clippings from throughout the nation were returned to our Jackson office from your activity the first week of the pageant.

A full report on the economic impact of the Miss USA Pageant will be published when all of the figures are assimilated.

Your assistance will be included in that report.

NORDA fills top management post

Dr. Louis P. Solomon has joined the staff of the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) at NSTL in Hancock County, in one of its top management positions.

A member of the Federal government's new Senior Executive Service, he holds the dual position of associate technical director and also director, Ocean Programs Management Office.

He advises Dr. Ralph Goodman, NORDA technical director, on NORDA management policy involving technical programs, and he also directs a broad program of large-scale ocean experiments conducted through contracts with industry and Navy laboratories.

The information from these studies is applied by the Navy primarily in the design of Navy sonar and acoustic surveillance systems and in the development of computer models capable of predicting the performance of anti-submarine warfare detection systems.

Dr. Solomon performed his undergraduate work at UCLA, received an MS degree from MIT in aeronautical engineering, and earned a PhD from UCLA in fluid mechanics, applied mathematics and electromagnetic theory.

Prior to reporting to NORDA, he was employed in private industry for 15 years.

During the last eight he was one of the founders and vice presidents of Planning Systems Inc., in the Washington, D.C. area where he specialized in underwater acoustics.

NORDA, a field activity of the Office of Naval Research established in 1976 at the National Space Technology Laboratories, has two principal directors.

In addition to the one headed by Dr. Solomon, the other is the Ocean Science and Technology Laboratory, which is an in-house Federal laboratory performing research and development related to the effects of the ocean environment on naval systems.

Waveland Deputies Claude Yarbrough and John Wilkerson apprehended Rainey with a '55 Evinrude motor and booked him for grand larceny, according to Tartavouille.

"Rainey is out on a $5,000 bond and we plan on going before the grand jury with his case this week," the investigator reported.

The case is being handled by Tartavouille and Investigator Sandra Henley.

Trinity fire

reward offered

A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and prosecution of persons involved in the burning of parts of Trinity Episcopal Church in Pass Christian, Fire Chief George Mixon said.

The parish hall portion of the church sustained several thousands dollars worth of fire damage and vandalism July 3 when several youngsters apparently were searching the premises for money. When they found none, Mixon said they began vandalizing the church and eventually set the hall on fire.

The reward is being offered by the state insurance commissioner and insurance council, Mixon said.

FIREMEN BATTLE BLAZE—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carmichael, corner of Dunbar and Boardman Avenues in Bay St. Louis, was destroyed by fire Thursday morning. Fire Chief Andrew Lizana reported the fire was discovered by Bay Fireman Gary Maurice who was checking the Cedar Point area after residents had called police reporting an odor of smoke in the area. Police Chief Douglas Williams said his department received telephone calls reporting the smell of smoke on Julia and Leonard Streets and police called the fire department. Lizana said Maurice spotted a red glow in the Carmichael's windows and turned in the alarm. Police were also patrolling, looking for the fire. The 4:20 a.m. alarm was answered by 11 Bay firemen with two fire trucks. "We did receive calls reporting the location of the fire when the second engine was enroute," Lizana said, "and the fire was so advanced that windows were popping from the intense heat and all we could do was protect the adjacent residences." Cause of the fire is undetermined with State Fire Marshall Norman Cowart checked the dwelling Saturday. (Staff photo—Ellis Cuevas)

Ocean Springs police charge Bay resident

Bay St. Louis police have arrested a Third Street resident on a warrant from Ocean Springs police in connection with August, 1979 boat thefts in that city. Ocean Springs police said statements from a suspect arrested there during the Fourth of July weekend implicated Truman Schultz of 215 Third St., Bay St. Louis. Schultz is suspected to have been involved in the August 8, 1979 theft of an 18-foot Glastron craft and a 22-foot inboard-outboard boat and trailer from Larry Blanton Paint and Body Shop in Ocean Springs, according to Bay Police chief Douglas Williams. Also last week, Bay police reported the arrest of Wayne Johnson, 18, of Shella Drive, Bay St. Louis, and Purnell Saucier, 20, of a St. Francis Street address. Johnson was charged with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia, reckless driving and no driver's license. Saucier was charged in the same incident with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia, according to arresting officers Gordon Campbell and Berlon Dennis. Bond for Johnson and Saucier was set at $500 each.

County labor considered for road construction

By RICH ADAMS
County laborers and equipment will be used to construct a road around the Borg-Warner Chemical Plant in Port Blenville Industrial Park, according to Port and Harbor Executive Director Wilson Webre. Webre said the costs of laying such a road with "force labor" will defray the county's cost by one third the estimated $300,000 the project would cost if a private contractor were to complete the job. The director said the commission will substitute clay gravel for sand and shell in constructing the public road in an attempt to cut costs for those materials in half. "This will cost us about $120,000 for the entire project," Webre said Thursday at the commission's meeting. "That is assuming the EDA gives us the authority to construct the road with force labor," Webre noted.

"If we went with a private contractor the project would cost at least $300,000," Webre told the commission. Frommherz Engineers of New Orleans presented preliminary plans to Webre, which the commission then approved.

In other business Thursday, Commissioner Fred Curet warned that Port Blenville tenants may sue the commission if action is not taken to dredge the entrance canal to the industrial park, which the director reported is shoring up with sand.

Last month Webre said Kim Moore, the commission surveyor, reported some 300,000 cubic feet of sand has been deposited in the entrance channel due to spring floods, and adding the channel may soon be impassable to barges. Commissioner Vic Frankiewicz

Thursday reported he has discussed the matter of dredging the channel with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Frankiewicz said if the proper permits are acquired and the Corps agrees to dredge the channel, some 18 months to two years may be required before the work will be completed.

"We cannot wait 18 months. By that time the channel may dry up and we will be held liable," Curet said. Webre said "the mountains keep getting higher and higher and harder to climb. We could do it in one night if we dredged it ourselves."

Earlier the Corps reported it could not dredge the channel because it was not a federal waterway, but Webre said a provision allowing the commission to declare the area a state disaster area and receive state aid is currently being considered by the legislature.

Gasahol seminar deadline nears

Power Alcohol—"Its Time has Come," will be the basis for a two-day seminar and workshop sponsored by the Mississippi Alcohol-Gasohol Association. The Golden Triangle Vocational-Technical Center will host the seminar to be held August 6th and 7th in their new facility with a seating capacity of one thousand.

National concern over rising fuel costs spurred recent passage of the Synthetic Fuels bill in Congress. With this added incentive to produce synthetic fuels, combined with Mississippi's vast farm production capabilities, the agricultural base could be greatly expanded and future economic growth realized for the state.

It is the purpose of this seminar to educate interested persons in the areas of gasohol production and marketing and make them aware of the future potentials that exist. Speakers will include persons on national and state levels who are well respected in their fields. Bill Holmberg, Director of the U.S. Department of Alcohol Fuels, will present an Alcohol Overview—"The National Energy Crisis."

President of the National Gasohol commission Holly Hodge will be present to help with organization procedures of the Mississippi Alcohol-Gasohol Association. Federal Regulations concerning gasohol production will be discussed by a representative of the Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms Bureau in Washington, D.C. Jim Buck Ross, Mississippi Commissioner of Agriculture, will speak on the topic of "Alcohol Production—Its Effects on Agriculture and Farm Production." Other topics will concern production procedures, marketing, financing, plant design, feedstocks, and federal and state regulations. Representatives from various companies will exhibit alcohol production and gasohol-related equipment. Participants will have an opportunity to view equipment, obtain vendor literature, and ask questions of exhibitors. A pre-registration fee of $50.00 per person is due by

July 25, 1980, which includes: two-day seminar and workshop, 250 page manual, two, bar-be-que luncheons, coffee and refreshments, and alcohol production equipment displays. Interested persons may obtain pre-registration forms from any county agent or by contacting the Golden Triangle vocational-Technical Center at 1-800-382-1013 or 327-1112, between 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. The Golden Triangle Vocational-Technical Center is located mid-way between Starkville and Columbus on Old Highway 82 East.

July garden tips offered

By MRS. C.H. WOOD

July is a good time to sow seeds for color during the fall months. Annuals to be started now are marigolds, petunias, zinnias, cockscomb and petunias. Plant cladiums for late summer color. Root camellias, azaleas, hollies and other ornamentals.

Keep azaleas and camellias well watered. If it continues to stay dry a deep soaking is best for gardens and lawns. Plants in hanging baskets need watering often. If possible, submerge the basket occasionally.

Summer lawns need their last nitrogen application. High-nitrogen fertilizers are 12-6-6 and 10-5-5. Feed chrysanthemums every two weeks with a complete fertilizer. After dahlias have been cut back to about half of their growth give them a light application of fertilizer. Give your flowers and vegetables a balanced feeding of 10-10-5 or 12-8-4.

Keep roses sprayed or dusted to control pests and diseases. To encourage new growth and flowering on your petunias pinch back the branches.

It is time to divide bearded iris. Replant outer rhizomes from 1 to 2 feet apart with the tops of rhizomes about 1/4 inch below the soil that has been thoroughly mixed with compost or well-rotted manure. Siberian iris need full sun. Japanese iris prefer partial shade and moist, well-drained soil.

Keep your shrubs and flower beds well mulched with bark, pine straw or compost.

If your spring-flowering bulbs haven't been dug and divided in the past 3 to 6 years and the clumps are crowded, they need to be divided. Dig up the clumps of bulbs and put them in a shady, dry spot. Leave soil on the clumps. In a few weeks after the bulbs and soil have dried out, you'll be able to remove the soil and separate the bulbs without tearing the roots. Store the bulbs in a cool, dry place until time to replant.

Fertilize houseplants every two to four weeks during the summer to promote continued growth. Keep plants well watered and protected from direct sun.

Grow fall tomatoes from suckers by allowing the suckers to become 4 to 6 inches long, then snap them off the plant with your thumbnail or pruning shears. Plant suckers directly in prepared garden soil, or root the suckers first in peat pots. Insert the lower half of the stem in soil. Roots will form on the buried portion of the stem. Be sure to keep the suckers well watered.

There's an Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

Nobody cares

Q. My husband and children seem not to care one thing for me. We have been married 25 years and have 4 kids who are almost grown. I have to pick up and clean up after all of them. They will not do anything to help me.

Sometimes I am sick, but I don't like to complain and it does no good at my house. My family acts like I have no feelings. My husband makes fun of me and acts like he doesn't care for me. It hurts me so much, and I have cried many times. What's the answer?

A. The answer, of course, is to change some of the patterns of your household. This will mean changing some of your basic attitudes as well. For some reason you have continued in the role of "victim" in this situation.

Perhaps unconsciously you are clinging to a familiar misery which leads to self-pity.

Shift the responsibility of picking up after your children off your shoulders and onto theirs. Get yourself some outside interests. Stop looking for sympathy and decide to become an out-flowing, self-forgetting person. You will be surprised at the wonderful way life will flow toward you.

We are sending you our booklet, How to Have a Good Day Every Day, which may be of help to you. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Ashamed

Q. I quit going to church since my daughter, 18, has been living in the home of her boyfriend. She and I both belonged to the choir, and now she doesn't go to church either. I have felt ashamed and couldn't stand anyone asking where she was!

I have thought about going to another church but cannot decide to do such a drastic thing. I don't want our pastor and his family hurt, they're precious people. It is a heavy load, and I cannot be happy. What shall I do?

A. You are, indeed, carrying a heavy burden alone. But you need not. You describe your pastor as a precious person whom you obviously respect and care about. He cares about you, too, and he will be at your side with his supportive help if you let him.

Share with him your unhappiness about your daughter's life. Work together on ways you can keep in touch with her, because with communication comes understanding. This positive step will open up a whole new, more meaningful relationship with your pastor - and your daughter.

Too late to love?

Q. I am driving myself crazy wondering how it is where my husband is. He died a few months ago, and now I wish I could tell him how sorry I am for things I did, or things I did not do that I should have.

I want to know that someday I can put my arms around him, hug him and tell him how much I love him and have missed him. Nothing I have read so far tells me that we can talk to or touch our loved ones in the next life. Could you help me?

A. Don't condemn yourself. Your husband understood you and loved you for yourself. He was not affected in his love by what you did or didn't do. Let go of your guilt feelings, for holding them can ruin the rest of your life. And where he is now, with God, he is wanting you to be happy. So send only loving and beautiful thoughts his way. Remember the line from the poet, John Greenleaf Whittier: "Love can never lose its own."

As to your question about the next life, read in the Bible in Luke, Chapter 24. The risen Christ talked with His disciples and they touched Him.

Why should he die?

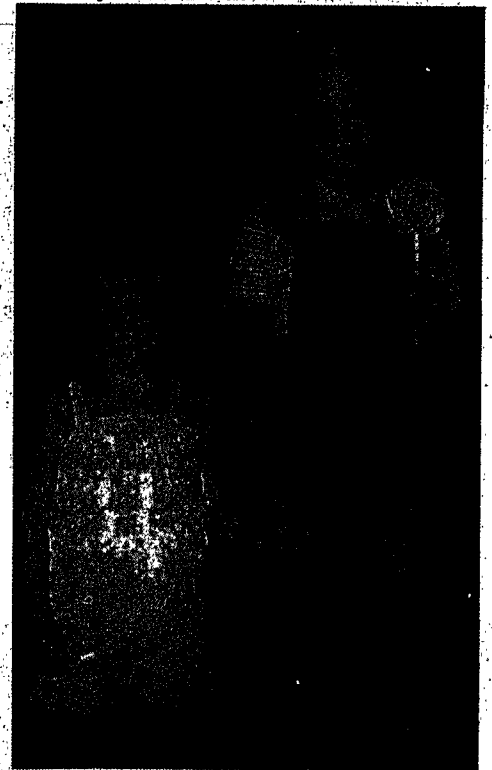

Q. I am a 20-year-old college sophomore. Andy and I began dating our junior year of high school. We dated off and on for 3 years until he was killed in a car accident. I think about him every day, so many things remind me of him. We went to different colleges and would go out when we were both home on weekends. Now I hate to come home because I have nothing to do on Friday and Saturday nights but think of Andy. It doesn't seem fair that such a young, loving guy like him could die. Please help.

A. We share your grief and pain in losing a special friend at such a young age. Often, when tragedy occurs, we cannot think of anything but the loss. We feel bitterness and anger because we do not understand. These are natural human emotions. Look beyond the bitterness and be thankful for Andy's life. Your sadness need not hamper your involvement with today.

Seek out other friends (even though you may find this difficult at first) and plan activities with them on weekends. Immerse yourself in your college courses. Your memories of Andy will always be a part of you. They can give more meaning to your life in the present and in the future.

Marine engineering offered at UNO an undergraduate degree in Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering at the University of New Orleans has been conditionally approved by the Louisiana Board of Regents, effective with the 1981 fall semester.

According to UNO Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Cooper R. Mackin, the Board of Regents family unanimously voted that the program be implemented "only if the Louisiana Legislature appropriates for the 1980-81 fiscal year the $1,500,000 which the current capital outlay bill earmarks for the purpose of planning the construction of an engineering building at UNO."

Further, the Regents stipulated that "this program shall be implemented only if the Louisiana Legislature appropriates for the 1980-81 fiscal year the $25,000 which the current appropriations bill earmarks in the UNO operating budget for the purpose of developing a baccalaureate program in naval architecture and marine engineering."

The Board also voted to appoint a review team responsible to the Board of Regents to chart direction and assess prospects for the program prior to August, 1981, says Dr. Mackin.

A number of community leaders appeared before the Board on behalf of the proposed program, including Charles Wall, president Wall Shipyard, Inc. of Harvey and chairman of the steering committee for a school of naval architecture, and Louisiana State Senator Henry "Hank" Braden.

A state-funded feasibility study on the proposed school has concluded that the program is needed here and will be supported by the local maritime industry and the steering committee has gone on record supporting construction of a model testing basin to be established in conjunction with the program at UNO.

Dr. Mackin adds that local maritime interests feel that since Louisiana and Mississippi are the nation's third and second largest shipbuilding states, respectively, and a number of marine and offshore oil industries are located in this area, New Orleans is the logical site for establishing a national center for marine technology.
